

Her Sense of Justice: When Murder is Sanctioned and Genetics Rule

Madison Kyle is a young, head-strong and attractive true-crime writer. While she is modestly successful, her agent prods a reluctant Madison into a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity: Interview serial killer Brandon Seville in San Quentins Death Row before he takes a short walk to the green room. Convicted of murdering 33 women, Seville has never admitted his crimes or divulged the locations of his victims graves. Now, however, his attorney, Carver, has convinced him to bare all in order for Sevilles familys to share in the planned books profits. With only weeks to live, Seville agrees and Madison is drawn into a nightmarish world of crime and sadism that wreaks havoc with her mind. Unable to write at her apartment in Newport Beach, Madison takes refuge in the Sierras at her agents cabin and then things begin to happen, nightmarish things.
